Brodie Fenlon, Editor In Chief, Executive Director of Daily News CBC News

Brodie Fenlon is the Executive Director of Daily News and Editor In Chief of CBC News. In his role, he oversees the journalism and standards for all the editorial efforts of CBC’s English Service journalism, and is responsible for CBC’s network programs and operations.

This includes the flagship The National newscast, the cable channel CBC News Network, the digital site CBCNews.ca and the CBC News App. It also includes podcasts and audio, from Front Burner podcast to World Report, The World This Hour and the World At Six.

Brodie oversees network reporters both nationally and internationally and also the Ottawa Bureau.

Over his nine years at CBC News, he oversaw the expansion of CBC as a digital news provider, with a focus on innovation on both owned and operated and distributed platforms.
